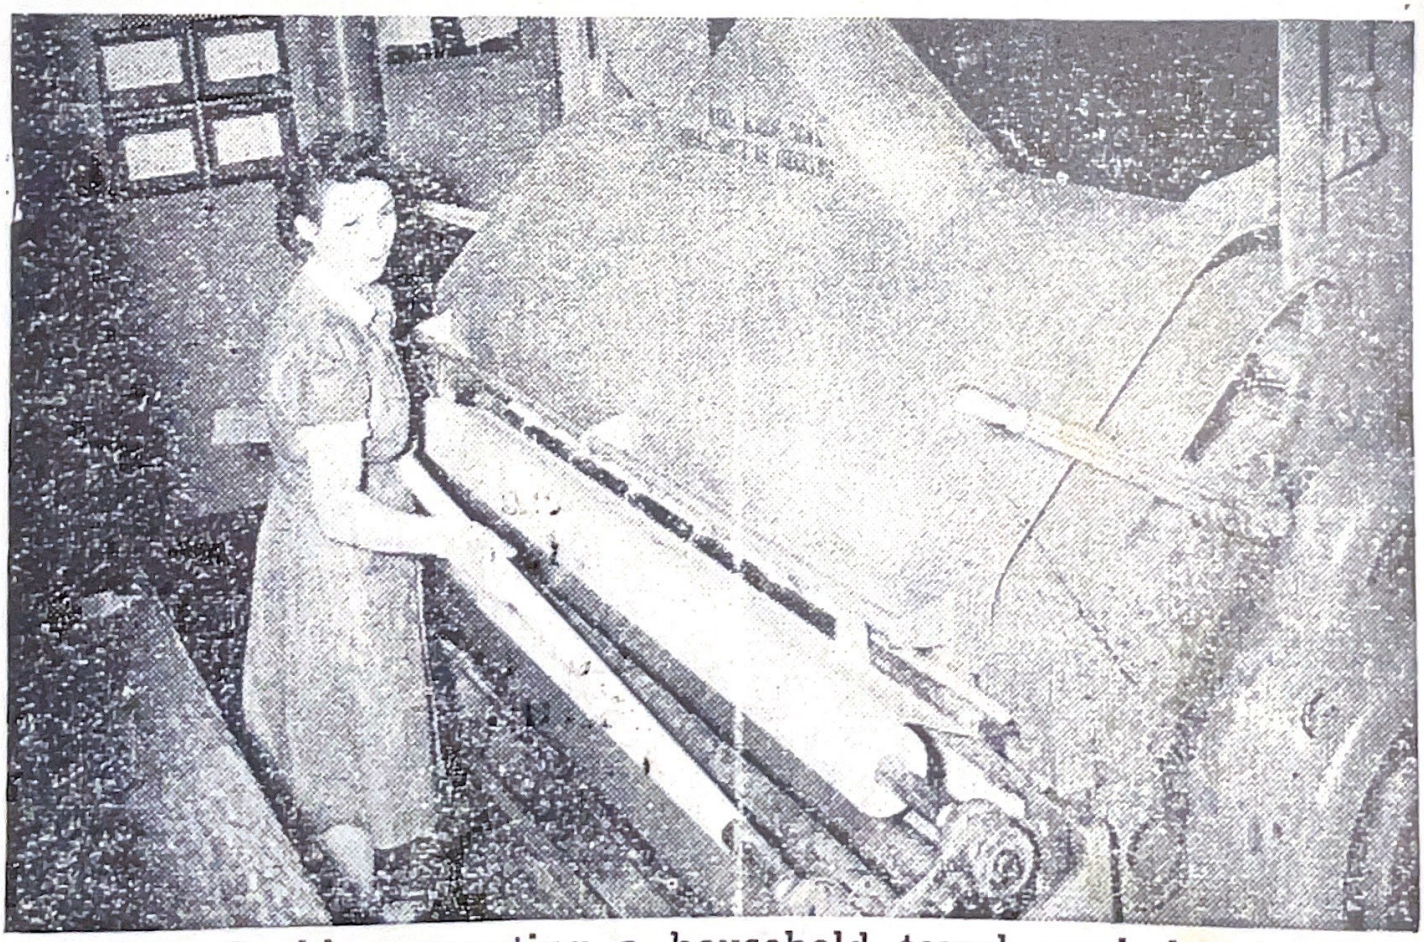
1942

Women Rapidly Replacing Men in Paper-Woolen Mills

The war has necessitated women doing men's work in factories all over the country because of the shortage of manpower created by younger men called into the service of their country. That same thing is true in Camas and Washougal. Because of a shortage of men in the paper and woolen mills women are replacing men as rapidly as they can be trained for the various jobs. Both mills need men and women.



Goldie Grubbs operating a household towel rewinder in the converting plant at the C. W. paper mill.

MAGGIE WORKED SAME REWINDER - DIFFERENT SHIFT

MAGGIE WORE STRIPED OVERALS WHEN SHE WORKED ON SAME REWINDER, NOT MILL UNIFORM.